

TOUCHING RAW FOODS CAN SPREAD ILLNESS

Raw chicken, pork, beef, clams, oysters, and previously frozen shrimp must be behind a display case

Always use a plastic glove when handling: fresh fish, live crabs, prawns, or snails.

Notice to Customer

The Hawaii State Department of Health says customers cannot touch raw animal foods.

Raw chicken, pork, beef, clams, oysters, and previously frozen shrimp must be kept behind display cases.

Raw animal foods carry germs that can be spread to other foods and people by hand-to-hand contact.

Use plastic disposable gloves to touch fresh fish, live crabs, live prawns and snails.

Help us keep your food safe to eat.

For more information call:

Hawaii State Department of Health
Food and Drug Branch
586-4725

